Fine adjustment of the STEINBAUER Additional electronic

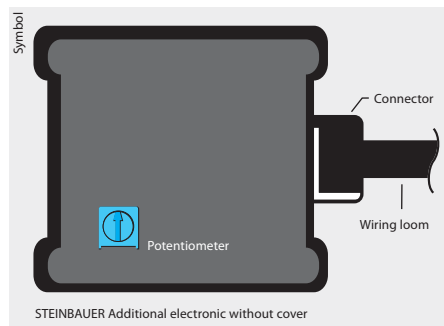

Due to original tolerances of manufacturing the preset characteristic map of the STEINBAUER Additional electronic may offer too much or too less power enhancement.

An inflated characteristic map causes more soot creation, engine misfires, bumpy idle running (variations of revolution speed), "bucking", stop or emergency mode of engine (severe less power) or flashing of defect control lights.

You can remedy these defects by fine adjustment of the STEINBAUER Additional electronic with the Potentiometer. The adjustment of the Potentiometer does not adversely effect the power enhancement.
